

ABSTRACT:

The invention disclosed provides an improved ear protection system comprising an ear protection device and innovative stowage means. The stowage means encompasses a means for inconspicuously securing the system to an easily accessible entity. Additionally incorporated in the system is a locking mechanism to control the extension and retraction of the ear protection device from the stowage means.